

Abstract

5 A system and method for processing a brokerage account application in a substantially real-time environment, where a host system retrieves Applicant data via a distributed network, communicates with a credit bureau system to obtain credit decisioning and approval; establishes an Applicant account, activates the account and obtains a username and password, which, upon receipt, allows the Applicant/account-holder to begin placing trades.

40655.3800